

THE OPERATIONAL LENS · GOVERNANCE BEFORE DEPLOYMENT

Before the Tool Goes Live.

Three things on the table before any AI or technology tool enters your practice. The cleanup cost of skipping these is higher than the cost of doing them up front.

i. A documented policy.

What is permitted. What is not. What gets reviewed, and by whom. Written down so it can be trained, referenced, and updated. The document is the floor for every conversation the team has about the tool from this point forward.

ii. A consent framework.

A repeatable conversation that runs the same way every time. Plain language. A recorded answer. An opt-out path. Built into the client experience so every advisor and team member runs the same play.

iii. A training plan.

For every team member who will touch the tool. The advisor's understanding does not transfer to the assistant by being in the same office. Train together, set the boundaries together, and review together on a regular cadence.
